Build Parentology into counselling

A substantial local parenting section, with original copy, a clearer structure and an enhanced experience for parents.

A connected part of Laura’s practice

Use /parenting/ as the new doorway. Keep the Parentology identity, In-Touch, RESET and exact book titles recognisable. Rewrite the page narrative around the counselling visitor’s decisions, instead of mirroring the source site.

Included in this revision	What it means
Eight P1 page drafts	New headings, introductions, body sections and actions.
Nine conditional page drafts	Original introductions and development structures; publish only when complete.
17 revised parenting URLs	New local paths; existing counselling URLs stay intact.
Enhanced UI and UX	Support comparison, local navigation, access labels and responsive layout studies.
Source evidence retained	55 non-blog URL checks, media registers and clear approval decisions.

More than a wording change

The new pages compare services, connect to counselling, organise resources by need and explain the next step. Different slugs and design alone do not make duplicated main content distinctive.

Current scope

No blog-post import, live website edits, new checkout or membership system. Existing Parentology delivery can remain the clearly labelled next step after useful local content.

Eight pages for the first release

All are inside the counselling website. Short navigation labels sit alongside fuller reader-facing headings.

New local URL	Reader-facing purpose
/parenting/	Parenting & teenagers — Introduce the parent journey and help a visitor choose education, parent support, In-Touch or counselling.
/parenting/support-for-you/	Support for you — Explain who parent support is for and distinguish parent coaching from counselling and support for the young person.
/parenting/ongoing-guidance/	In-Touch guidance — Explain Laura’s messaging-led parent support without implying an emergency or overnight service.
/parenting/responding-with-reset/	The RESET approach — Provide one consistent explanation of the framework across books, services and education.
/parenting/practical-tools/	Practical tools — Curate books, guides and video entry points with explicit free, sign-up or paid access labels.
/parenting/learn-at-your-pace/	Learn at your pace — Separate on-demand paid workshops from free replays and live services.
/parenting/learn-at-your-pace/when-parenting-feels-too-much/	Parent overwhelm workshop — Create a concise informative local sales page for the existing workshop; keep fulfilment external.
/parenting/learn-at-your-pace/understanding-self-harm/	Self-harm awareness workshop — Describe the existing educational workshop with appropriate professional boundaries; no new clinical advice is authored in this audit.

One shared professional identity

Existing counselling services, biography, qualifications and book pages connect to this section. They are not renamed or duplicated underneath every topic.

Conditional expansion

Exam support, a topic hub, five substantive topic pages, schools/groups and a distinct planning-session page are mapped for later publication. No thin or unfinished pages are linked as live destinations.

Give each page a useful job

Build around a parent’s question, Laura’s explanation, the relevant source and a proportionate next step. Related questions can be sections rather than separate URLs.

Parent need	Local treatment	Useful connections
Which support is for me?	Compare coaching, parent counselling and young-person therapy.	Existing counselling pages; In-Touch; enquiry.
What happens between conversations?	Explain the actual In-Touch arrangement and boundaries.	RESET; related reading; current enquiry.
How can I understand my teenager?	A topic hub and completed question-led explanations.	Laura’s context; approved resources; books.
What can I read or watch?	Browse by need, format and access.	Book detail; reviewed video; workshop.
Is this workshop suitable?	Explain format, scope and access before a purchase.	Local support options; existing fulfilment.

New structure, accurate facts

Biographical facts and genuine product names remain consistent. The introductions, narrative, comparisons, supporting questions and local links are newly drafted for this experience.

AI, AEO and Google foundations

Use clear, crawlable explanations with named authorship, source context and sensible internal links. Add accurate Person, Book, Service and relevant video data. These help interpretation; no schema, URL or rewrite percentage guarantees visibility.

Clear choices. Room to read.

The desktop parenting hub and mobile homepage demonstrate the proposed hierarchy. These are layout studies using source imagery, not a completed website.

laurathomascounselling.co.uk/parenting/ • desktop layout study

LAURA THOMAS
COUNSELLING

Counselling Parenting & teenagers About Books Contact

PARENTOLOGY / WITH LAURA THOMAS

Support for you. Understanding for your teenager.

Practical guidance, space for yourself and a clearer route into support.

START WITH WHAT YOU NEED

Support for me

Compare coaching and counselling.

Find support →

Guidance as things happen

Understand In-Touch parent guidance.

Explore In-Touch →

Understanding and tools

Discover RESET, books and learning.

Find a starting point →

Mobile homepage / two local doors

LAURA THOMAS
COUNSELLING

☰

Different journeys. The right support for you.

Counselling and specialist parenting support with Laura Thomas.

A space for you

Explore counselling →

Growing together

Explore parenting →

Both choices stay on this website.

An integrated parenting hub

Parentology appears inside the counselling site. Three local choices explain support, ongoing guidance and learning before the visitor reaches external delivery.

Mobile first-screen choice

Both homepage doors are visible as compact cards. Text stays readable; no hover is required. On short screens, ordinary scrolling takes priority over forcing a fixed-height scene.

Editorial, with purpose

Smaller headings, real Laura imagery, calm contrast and concise card copy give the content space. Parentology adds warmth while the shared header and typography connect both worlds.

Make the next step understandable

Service arrangements and resource access belong beside the decision. The interface should explain the difference before asking someone to enquire or purchase.

/parenting/ongoing-guidance/ • In-Touch service layout study

LAURA THOMAS / PARENTING & TEENAGERS

IN-TOUCH / FOR PARENTS

A continuing connection through In-Touch

Messaging-led parent guidance, explained alongside clear arrangements and boundaries.

Understand the arrangement

Discuss suitability
Agree contact and availability
Use the agreed guidance

CLEAR BOUNDARIES

In-Touch is not an emergency or continuously monitored service. Working days and response windows are agreed before support begins.

Ask about In-Touch

Looking for counselling instead? View the separate services →

Mobile / practical tools

PARENTOLOGY / LAURA THOMAS

Something useful for the moment you are in.

Find a resource by subject and format.

All Read Watch Learn

READ / BOOK

Parenting Unstoppable Girls

View book details →

LEARN / PAID WORKSHOP

When parenting feels too much
Read scope and access →

In-Touch with clear boundaries

A simple process and an adjacent facts panel explain how the arrangement works. Confirmed terms belong here; speculative tiers and prices do not.

Tools organised by need

Format and access labels distinguish books, videos and paid learning. Every card explains its destination. A filter refines the list without hiding the useful content behind an elaborate tool.

Accessible by default

Readable copy, keyboard focus, generous targets and direct links come first. Video loads on request. Motion is optional and cannot delay or obscure access to support.

Keep the identity accurate

Real book covers and service names remain intact. Images and workshop access still need the permissions and checks recorded in the register.

Rewrite the experience, retain the person

The drafts preserve Laura’s professional identity and practical tone while changing how the local pages introduce and connect her work.

Source reference	New local opening
Homepage situation-led opening	Support for you. Understanding for your teenager.
Parent-support urgency-led opening	Find the support that fits your family.
In-Touch practical-life positioning	A continuing connection through In-Touch.
Resource catalogue heading	Something useful for the moment you are in.

What remains exact

Parentology, In-Touch, the approved RESET labels and book titles are genuine names. Qualifications and publication facts must remain accurate, not creatively rewritten into stronger claims.

What changes substantially

New support choices, service comparisons, information order, resource labels, actions and connections into counselling. Topic pages require Laura’s contextual explanations and verified book/resource relevance, not invented chapters.

What Laura needs to confirm

Current In-Touch terms, session formats, one RESET definition, workshop terms, resource permissions, credentials and the correct enquiry/calendar destinations. Unconfirmed details stay out of public copy.

Build from one consistent handover

The rewritten drafts, new route registry, design brief and source records now point to the same local experience. Cursor should assess the existing repository first.

Stage	Deliverable	Acceptance
0 • Decisions	Check source facts and content readiness.	No conflicting public promises.
1 • Structures	Shared shell, /parenting/ and mobile local doors.	Clear choices, real links, readable layouts.
2 • Services	Parent support, In-Touch and RESET.	Rewritten copy and approved arrangements.
3 • Learning	Tools, workshops and authorised media.	Explicit access; existing delivery retained.
4 • Authority	Shared books/profile; ready topic content.	Useful contextual connections; no filler.
5 • QA	Routes, metadata, media and release candidate.	Tested and reviewed before launch.

A six-week working sequence

Week 1: facts and content selection. Week 2: structures and visual review. Weeks 3–4: services, resources and shared authority. Week 5: consolidated copy/design review. Week 6: QA and agreed launch. Conditional topic expansion follows content readiness.

Search and migration controls

Preserve existing counselling URLs. The earlier /parentology/ proposals were never live: replace planning references, not production URLs. Do not redirect or alter Parentology World by default. Review distinct intent and consistent canonicals before indexing.

Open these files next

The ZIP includes the original audit evidence plus the revised content and design direction. Earlier conflicting route and retention-only instructions are superseded.

File	Purpose
README.md	Reading order and revision scope.
Rewritten_Page_Content.md / JSON	Eight P1 body drafts; nine conditional introductions and development structures.
UI_UX_Design_Brief.md	Templates, navigation, visual hierarchy, mobile and interaction behaviour.
Proposed_Routes.json / Page_Briefs.md	17 revised local destinations and linked page/media requirements.
Content_Differentiation_Map.csv	The distinct reader purpose and added context of each page.
Route_Changes_Not_Redirects.csv	Replacement proposal paths; no live redirect instructions.
Copy_Ledger_Template.csv	Source-to-opening examples and Laura’s review/edit tracking.
Source, media and metadata registers	55 URL checks, 128 image references, 24 image renditions, six video IDs and access records.
Cursor_Assessment_and_Implementation_Batches.md	Controlled implementation in the existing repository.

Readiness

This is content and design preparation. P1 wording is drafted for Laura’s review; P2 pages need substantive completion. Video playback, rights and access remain unverified. Neither live website has been changed.

Principal source references

https://www.parentologyworld.com/

https://www.parentologyworld.com/parents

https://www.parentologyworld.com/intouch

https://www.parentologyworld.com/about

https://www.parentologyworld.com/resources

https://developers.google.com/search/docs/crawling-indexing/canonicalization